

Eden Outreach Diagnostic and Evaluation Services

Eden's Outreach Department was established in 1986 to provide services to individuals with autism and their families outside the Eden Family of Services. Since that time, the Outreach Department has grown to provide an array of highly individualized services, grounded in the principles of applied behavior analysis (ABA) and to assist with 'Best Practices' for the treatment of autism spectrum disorders.

To effectively identify and serve both children and adults with autism, Eden's Outreach department offers a wide range of diagnostic and evaluative services. Conducted at both the Eden Facilities and on-site locations, these services enable parents, schools and agencies to obtain assistance from a multidisciplinary team of professionals experienced with individuals with autism.

Diagnostic and Evaluation Services

Diagnostic Evaluations

Conducted by master's level Eden staff, Eden's diagnostic evaluations consist of an in-depth parent interview, behavioral observations, and assessment on standardized measures. In addition to an opinion as to diagnosis, these evaluations contain detailed educational behavioral and home recommendations, supported by programs from Eden's curriculum.

Speech and Language Evaluations

A master's level speech-language pathologist evaluates an individual's speech, language and communicative competence, through both formal and informal assessment tools. Both diagnosis and recommendations for remediation are presented in a formal report.

Augmentative & Alternative Communication Evaluations

For individuals with autism who struggle to communicate verbally, Eden's expertise in AAC evaluations can help. The individuals communication profile is notched to a appropriate augmentative alternative system. Systems received include sign language, picture systems and voice output systems.
